

SunRiser Skateboard Headlights

Contributed by BrianForest

Thursday, 19 May 2005

Last Updated Wednesday, 28 February 2007

SunRiser Skateboard Headlights are back. SunRisers were originally designed and developed by dbsumo in 2001, but proved to be too expensive to produce and sell at a reasonable price. With advancements in LED production, the SunRiser is not only less expensive to produce, they are also brighter and stronger.

The SunRiser remains only 1/4" thick, with 3 LED's that project over 50 feet, and replaceable batteries that last up to 50 hours. SunRisers are installed like a conventional riser, between the trucks and deck.

SunRisers are available through www.dbsumo.com, and retail for $20 each.