

ROAROCKET BETA BOARD CONTEST

Contributed by ROAROCKET
Sunday, 03 August 2008
Last Updated Thursday, 07 August 2008

[Roarocket along with Concrete Wave and Silverfishlongboarding is giving you the chance to be selected as a board tester for a new concept deck. All you need to do is share some words and a little video. Read on to check out a bit more on the concept board and the small print for the contest, this is a major chance to be a part of board building history.]
TESTERS NEEDED FOR A NEW TYPE OF SKATEBOARD CONSTRUCTION FROM ROAROCKET

BETA BOARD CONTEST. Roarocket is looking for five testers to test their new and innovative deck building construction called "Continuous Layer" CL for short. The purpose of the Beta Board Contest is to test, refine and ultimately create a vastly different type of deck. Roarocket is reaching out to riders of varied riding styles to ride, assess and then perfect this technology. Hosted by: Concrete Wave Magazine, DS Boardsports, BOZ Boards, Silverfishlongboarding and Roarocket Skateboard Company.

How it Works:

To be a Beta Board tester, post 3 to 4 paragraphs describing the reason why you want be a CL board tester and the particular type of deck your riding style suits. Along with the essay, a maximum 90-second video must be included to show your skill level in your discipline to determine which style of board you want to test. Unedited camera phone video's will work fine. (video must be posted from Google Video or Youtube). We'd like to include all forms of skateboard disciplines, from street to slalom and everything in between.

Google Video    YouTube    Post Video's and essays

The 5 winners will be selected from the postings by a panel of judges from CW, Silverfish, DS Boardsports, Roarocket, plus an unbiased person.

Each contest winner will receive a custom made Roarocket CL deck built for their particular discipline to ride, test, and to keep. Brian from DS Boardsport, Michael from BOZ Boards and Ted from Roarocket will be the deckbuilders.

Decks are to be ridden and tested over a one-month period, using your own hardware. After which, each tester will submit their assessment in 3 or more paragraphs with pics, in the submission thread.

At the end of the testing period a random draw will award one of the 5 testers with a Carbon-Gold CL deck built to incorporate the tester's refinements from their assessment of their deck!

Why are we doing this?

By opening this contest to you, the world's community of riders, it does not limit testing and involvement to any internal, geographic, or professional status.

Roarocket's interest is to take ownership of a new method of making a laminated skateboard deck and to share this with the skateboard community.

And finally, to create an article in CW Magazine with interesting and inspiring reading about something new in the skateboard world. The article will provide insights into the design, building, testing and refining of a new technology and its resultant product, (good or bad!) by involving the builders, testers and critics from a diverse group of skateboard riders.

Contest Dates:

Contest is open now, deadline for entering your submission is midnight Aug, 31st, 2008

The 5 BETA BOARD contest winners will be announced Sept, 5th, 2008

Don't miss this chance! Be part of custom deck-making history!

- Ted Hunter, Michael Brooke, Brian Morgan, Michael Bozinovski and Silverfishlongboarding.com

Check out all the Board Building Kit Brilliance at Roarokit .