

Maryhill Festival of Speed on NBC TV

Contributed by Silverfish
Thursday, 09 October 2008
Last Updated Sunday, 10 May 2009

"For one week in August, the world's greatest gravity racers can be found in one place: the 2008 Maryhill Festival of Speed, home of this year's IGSA World Championships. 200 of gravity sport's biggest names will take center stage in a five day celebration of speed, skill and loose definitions of personal safety."--NBC Sports

Maryhill Festival of Speed Goes Prime Time!
{google}-7538505854031807733&ei{/google} CLICK HERE IF THAT DOESN'T WORK!

On Saturday, October 11th, 2008 at 2:30-4:00 PM ET/11:30AM-1:00 PM PT, the Jeep World of Adventure Sports plays on NBC --regular, prime time NBC-- and will feature the 2008 IGSA World Championships at Maryhill Festival of Speed! If you were there, you saw our friends from Aura 360 with a camera crew on the hill, interviewing skaters and setting up on-board video runs. On Saturday, MFOS will be one of five "adventure sports" in the NBC show. Click the pic above to hit their website for The Jeep World of Adventure Sports! If you missed it, click the link we've embedded above to jump over to see 11 minutes worth on Google Vids.

Then sit your butt down, set your DV recorder and check out the racing and Scoot Smith's amazing final run to take the World Championship as the first-ever repeat winner at Maryhill. None of us have seen the final product and we don't know how it's been edited to present the racing, but the crew let us see some raw footage through the camera and it looked killer. How long has it been since America has seen speedboard racing on television? Call your family, call your friends, call your high school principal and tell them, "THIS is what we do, so check it out!" Then, dye your hair green because Friday, October 10th is Scoot Smith Day. When people ask "WTF?" Tell'em to watch it on television.

Did you watch it? Comment Here!

Looking for more? Check out thousands of photos from several photographers in the MFOS 08 Gallery and look for Marcus Rietema's write-up in the next issue of Concrete Wave. Want to buy the DVD of the Show? Contact info@worldofadventuresports.com